Vintage Notes: Coming off 2015, our hottest (and earliest) harvest on record, we were prepared for another year of record-breaking temps, off-the-chart acids, and fruit arriving on our crush pad well before Labor Day. A record early bud break was followed by a warmish spring which caused early leaf and shoot development. May and June only reassured this line of thinking. It was hot. The grapes were ripening at a worrisome rate- the alcohol was going to be high and we were concerned about getting the acidity we're so used to in the Columbia Valley... in other words, 2016 was shaping up to be a year that broke all the records.

Then, July happened. Or, we suppose, didn't happen. It was a perfect example of that very interesting bit of life in which as soon as you think you know what's going on, it manifests into something entirely different. In many areas, July was the hottest month the earth has seen in modern times... but in Washington, in our vineyards... it was relatively cool.

Growth was moderated and slowed, ripening halted while the sugars and acids started to balance. August began with lamb-like intensity, coaxing along the grapes into an early- but not outrageous- start to harvest.

We believe the 2016 vintage will give us generous whites of substantial body and rich reds in the intense and extracted direction.

Winemaker's Comments: "Very floral with layers of apricot, peach, and mango flavors. At once tangy and creamy. Hints of rock candy and cherry blossom add intrigue to this expressive, food- friendly dry white. This is the our third vintage of Albariño. The wine has marvelous aromatics, with crisp acidity and a surprisingly rich finish. I'm convinced it's a natural for Washington State."
