Vintage Notes:

Coming off 2015, our hottest (and earliest) harvest on record, we were prepared for another year of record-breaking temps, off-the-chart acids, and fruit arriving on our crush pad well before Labor Day. A record early bud break was followed by a warmish spring which caused early leaf and shoot development. May and June only reassured this line of thinking. It was hot. The grapes were ripening at a worrisome rate- the alcohol was going to be high and we were concerned about getting the acidity we're so used to in the Columbia Valley... in other words, 2016 was shaping up to be a year that broke all the records. Then, July happened. Or, we suppose, didn't happen. It was a perfect example of that very interesting bit of life in which as soon as you think you know what's going on, it manifests into something entirely different. In many areas, July was the hottest month the earth has seen in modern times... but in Washington, in our vineyards... it was relatively cool. Growth was moderated and slowed, ripening halted while the sugars and acids started to balance. August began with lamb-like intensity, coaxing along the grapes into an early- but not outrageous- start to harvest.

wine pH: 3.8

Total acidity: .65

Residual Sugar: Trace (dry)

Alcohol: 13.5%

Varietal Composition: main varietals are Cab & Merlot with 13.6% of non-Cab/Merlot varietals

Winemaking: Pumpovers 2 times daily; pressed at 2-6% sugar; peak fermentation temperature 85 degrees; aged 19 months in old and new European oak barrels.

Winemaker's Comments: "Very aromatic, opening with a vibrant range of plum, raspberry and orange zest flavors. Deftly balanced and approachable. Intriguing notes of menthol, mint and dark chocolate chime in on the long, lingering finish. Stock up on this wine to serve as a satisfying everyday red."
